PASTOR'S NOTES

Glazed Over

When we lived up in the panhandle of Texas, we had an extended-cab pickup truck, and I put lots of miles on that vehicle, including trips to Angel Fire and Taos, New Mexico for skiing. By the time that 1997 truck went to our son Chris, in the spring of 2005, it had over 150,000 miles on it. There were a lot of memories in that truck.

One weekend I was coming back from an overnight meeting, and there was a stiff crosswind, which brought out a fair supply of tumbleweeds being released from their barbed-wire homesteads to make their way across highway lanes and medians to the next few strands of opportunity. One of the many attributes of the Texas panhandle is that the wide-open spaces afford lots of time to see tumbleweeds coming and going, and to gauge one's speed as tumbleweeds approach. On this particular day most of the tumbleweeds were of the small, nimble, fast variety, with only a few larger than one of the truck's tires. Then, I saw a tumbleweed coming from the other side of the highway. I noticed it at least a half-mile away, because it was huge. I watched it slowly lumbering across the southbound lanes, dipping into and out of the median, and I was trying to gauge its travel and adjust my speed because in just the few seconds that it took to cross the median I saw that the stalk of this Texas-sized tumbleweed was as big as my wrist. I let off the accelerator and the tumbleweed slowed, so I punched the pedal and the tumbleweed seemed to be timing its journey with my truck and bam! it smacked me right at the window, easily taller than the truck, and practically exploded and then was gone. But in that instant I heard the scrape of dry wood on black paint and I groaned. When I stopped and examined the side of the truck it looked like ... well, like a giant tumbleweed had tried to jump into the pickup and failed.

I went to a local body shop and when the gentleman looked at it, he just shook his head and said, "boy, that musta' been a big one," and gave me a little bit of magic potion to rub on the side of the truck. So, I washed the truck and rubbed on that elixir (okay, it was a glaze, which was noted as "number three" on the bottle) and those scratches were practically gone!

The family came out and they were amazed – where did the scratches go? Well, I knew where they were, and if I looked really hard, I could still see the traces of some of the larger ones. Maybe other people couldn't see them, but I knew where they'd been. Some of them had been buffed over, some were still faintly visible, but I could see them with my eyes closed. Oh, I was glad that those scratches could hardly be seen, and "#3 glaze" was so cool that I treated the whole truck to it; the truck looked so smooth and shiny, almost like new.

We all make mistakes, suffer lapses of judgement, goof things up, and in church language, commit sins. Sometimes these are like scratches on a paint job, and other times they are more like fender-benders. Some of them are as plain as day, and we wonder how many people are seeing our imperfections. And often we think that if we can simply "glaze over" these mistakes and errors and sins, the rest of the world will think we are fine. But we know, don't we, where each of those flaws are located.

As I was reflecting on the tendency, even the desire to hide our flaws from others and from ourselves, I got to thinking about Easter, and the significance of Jesus dying on the cross and rising from the tomb. I got to thinking about redemption, and God's grace, and those scratches on that long-ago truck. Whether our sins, our mistakes, our imperfections are visible for the whole world to see, or whether we think they are glazed over, there are two things that I think are important to remember: our faults are known by and redeemed by God, and they neither hinder nor help our journey of faith. Our faults, our sins identify the difficulty of the journey, but they are not the journey itself.

My current truck now has over 200,000 miles on it, and some weeks it looks better than others – and the same could be said for any of our lives. But God doesn't love the way we appear; God loves the way we love.

Peace,

April Just Bring It:

Patriot House Transitional Housing for Veterans

Pantry items that are non-perishable, single serving food items such as individual and foil packets of tuna, microwavable cups of noodles or soups, crackers, cookies, etc.

Additionally, single day bus passes are always needed for doctor appointments, interviews and work.

A program of the Presbyterian Night Shelter, Patriot House provides semiprivate facilities for veterans, allowing them to prepare their own meals and have separate recreation, as well as access to showers, laundry services and a computer lab.

They work with Veterans Affairs to secure and retain employment for homeless veteran clients, move them into permanent housing and eliminate or minimize barriers to continued self-sufficiency. Paul Duncan is spearheading this opportunity for service for RPC, and would be happy to provide further information as needed.

April, 2022

How do you make the dreary winter pass quickly? Stay busy! PWR was certainly busy this winter. David Hares spoke to us at a general meeting in January. A local photographer and author, he shared beautiful pictures of some of his favorite spots in national parks. We were swept away with the beauty of the giant sequoias, the Arches of Utah, the quiet dignity of the Gettysburg Cemetery and Vietnam Memorial. Plus adorable shots of eagles, black bear, wild horses and curious turtles.

In February, a small band of willing hands gathered after church to pack 20 “thank you” baskets of fruit and snacks for our first responders and local school staff. Westaid received a gift of the overflow. Thanks to Kit Van Nostrand for coordinating.

Two enthusiastic young ladies, Vanessa and Wendy, from the Welman Project, came to show us how to use our imagination to help save the environment. Their business is open for teachers, day care workers, etc. to browse and take free of charge any of the goods they may need. Our throw away items can be someone else’s treasure. To prove their point, they then brought out trays of donated items (papers, cloth squares, buttons, picture wire) and guided us through the art of creating flowers. We hope to use these to decorate the cross for Easter. If you would like to help them ”fill a classroom, not a landfill”, you can drop off items at their store on Vickery, Wednesday thru Friday, 12:00—6:00 p.m.

GETTING TO KNOW OUR MEMBERS

My name is Delaine Godwin. Born and raised in Fort Worth, Texas. My best friend and sidekick is John Godwin. We have been married for 56 years and 10 months. We have four successful children, eight grandchildren and 2 great grandsons. My life has been centered around my church, my family, and my friends. I have served as an Elder, Treasurer, Worship Chairperson, Bible Study Leader, and Choir Member.

I love the outdoors, lake life, getting my fingers in the dirt, and watching my grandkids participating in their sport events. In my working years, I helped design and furnish the 2 towers at UTSW Medical Center in Dallas. I was also the bookkeeper for my Manufacturers Rep Company. I do love "numbers" and now work at home doing the books for my daughter's salon, Thairapie Salon, with 38 employees.

I love Bible Studies and digging into scripture. I have a passion to sing "Gospels" to glorify my Lord. I sing mainly at home these days. I am a beginner at bridge but love to play. Also recently learned to knit—just a beginner at this.

God has blessed me with great family and a great life. I wouldn't change a thing.

Remember Our Home Members

We are asking for you to send any of our treasured home members a card. Please call Jane Johnson at 817-307-9776 to get names and addresses. Let them know that you are thinking about them.
