Footsteps

About a dozen years ago, Shannon gathered a handful of musically-inclined colleagues in Muscle Shoals, Alabama to help him record an album, and included with the dozen or so songs he had written was “Boots of Giants.” As the song unfolds, Shannon mentions a blues guitarist, two clergy colleagues, and his father. Throughout the song the message resounds: we often sit among the boots of giants, though we rarely realize this in the moment. In a little over four minutes, we begin to understand how some people provide life-long influence, and that we often wait until it is time for a eulogy before we realize just how significant they have been.

During that week in Muscle Shoals, the evenings were a time for rehearsing, and laughing, and learning about the characters and situations that populated the songs, and Shannon gave us plenty of “between-the-lines” stories, including the four men mentioned in Boots of Giants. Let’s just say that Shannon gladly emulated the musicality of that long-ago blues guitarist, but not his rambunctious lifestyle or questionable morals; we honored the memories of his dad, who died before any of us had known Shannon; the longest conversations were around those two clergy colleagues, whom some of us knew.

We eventually agreed that all those whom we consider saints contain flaws and failings, alongside goodness and virtue, and our respect for them is a weighing of those flaws and virtues. The importance, the impact, the lasting influence which some people have is, in large measure, a matter of circumstance and proximity. Our friends experience our parents differently than we do; some teachers and colleagues are more relatable to us than to our friends, and what some of us see as strength, others see as hurdles. Or, as Shannon might say, what some experience as the boots of giants, others might consider to be cast-off clodhoppers.

Even before the fifth century, the Church set aside time to remember all of the souls who have left this earthly life, yet who continue to influence the world. In the Protestant tradition we have expanded this to All Saints Day, which honors the life of those departed and encourages future generations to carry on grace-filled ministries of compassion and connection. For more than a millennium, November 1st is that day of remembrance, but of course, these memories, and these ministries, are deeper than a single day. A century and a half before Shannon penned Boots of Giants, Horatio Bolton Nelson wrote these lyrics:

*By all your saints still striving, for all your saints at rest,
Your holy name, O Jesus, forevermore be blessed!
For those passed on before us, we sing our praise anew
And, walking in their footsteps, would live our lives for you.*

By All Your Saints Still Striving, lyrics by H. B. Nelson, harmony by R.V. Williams,

November Just Bring It: Stockings for Presbyterian Children's Homes and Services

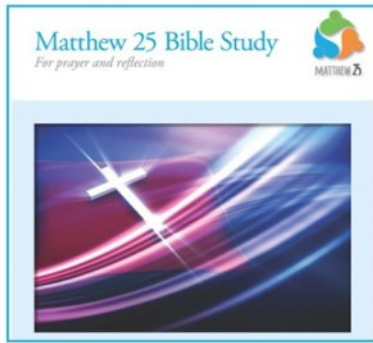

RPC is considered a real "STAR" for creation of amazing Christmas stockings for youth in the group foster homes for PCHS -- We were told that last year our Christmas stockings were the favorite gifts for the youth in the homes! Once again they are requesting that we provide special treats as well as useful items in stockings for individual children at PCHAS.

The stockings will be picked up at the church. Deadline is November 30, 2025.

Mathew 25 Action Team

Thanks to Johanna Jones for leading the interesting discussion of the book MY DOCUMENTS by Kevin Nguyen. We have rescheduled the November book, THIS IS HOW IT ALWAYS IS by Laurie Frankel, to January 27. We never had a book scheduled for December.

Food distribution at Quail Trail is Tuesday, November 21st at 9:15.

Quail Trail Birthday Celebration will be on Friday, November 25 as we move to a quarterly event with RPC providing a meal as well as the birthday cake and cards. Your help will be appreciated.

All are welcome to take part in any of these activities.

“When you do it unto the least of these my brothers, you do it unto me.” Matthew 25:40.

Matthew 25 Action Team Did You Know?

Did you know that social and cultural privilege occurs in many avenues, such as realizing that fifteen percent (15%) of households in the U.S. include someone with a physical disability, but only six percent (6%) of homes are designed with physical disability in mind?

Many of us know the blessings of having fellow church members pray for us and others. Prayer Request items are distributed to a list maintained by PWR. Anyone who would like to be added to this distribution list should call the Church office. Anyone who has a prayer request can send the information to Ruth Ann Rinewalt at r.rinewalt@att.net.

We need ushers, communion servers, and liturgists for Sundays during the 2025 year of worship. Please volunteer to help with the Sunday morning worship service. Also, if you signed up for a particular Sunday and something comes up, please contact Shiryl Thompson Gillaspie at 817-266-4171 in order to fill those positions.
